A Message From Your Teen Librarian

A zine, short for magazine, is a way for people to share their art, writing, experiences, and more with other people. They can be informational, like DIY manuals or community calendars, or artistic, using their creative art or writing skills to share a story. Zines are typically self-published or self-made using a variety of techniques like collaging, photocopying, painting and more.

Pets have been our companions for generations and the love between a pet and their owner is one of the greatest bonds imagininable. Anchorage teens took on the challenge of creating creative works dedicated to the pets in their lives, ranging from the usual cats and dogs, to the more uncommon, like horses, lizards, and more. I hope that you can feel the love each teen had for their pets, and who knows, you might be inspired to create a piece for the pets in your life!

If you enjoyed this zine, try making your own at home! Pass it around to all your friends or think about submitting your work to the Teen Zine next year. It's never too late to make your own zine!
